

KIRWAN INSTITUTE
for the Study of Race and Ethnicity

Perspectives On Ohio's Death Penalty

The death penalty continues to be one of the most contentious issues in the United States. Recently, New Mexico became the 15th US state to abolish capital punishment, a decision that has resulted in strong reactions from proponents and opponents alike. The ongoing debate on this issue is especially relevant in Ohio, which has a long history with the death penalty and has carried out a total of 371 executions.

Saturday, May 9, 2009

2:00 - 4:00 p.m.

Moritz College of Law Building (Drinko Hall)

Saxbe Auditorium (1st floor)

55 W. 12th Avenue

A Panel Discussion

The impact of the death penalty will be explored from different viewpoints.

Andrew Welsh-Huggins, author of No Winners Here Tonight: Race, Politics, and Geography in One of the Country's Busiest Death Penalty States (Ohio University Press, 2009)

Tim Young, Director, Office of the Ohio Public Defender.

Doug Berman: William B. Saxbe Designated Professor at Moritz College of Law.

Moderator: Andrew Grant-Thomas, Deputy Director, Kirwan Institute for the Study of Race and Ethnicity.

This event is open to the public: No reservation needed.
Parking is available at the Ohio Union parking garage (1759 College Rd.)